Le BEAUVALLON

A Riviera Dream

There are some places around the world that never seem to change. Not many, but among them is the French Riviera. Described nearly a hundred years ago by F. Scott Fitzgerald as 'the hot sweet South of France', it has never lost its mythical status in the eyes of the world. Since the Belle Époque, those golden years of peace, optimism and flourishing arts, the French Riviera has been the place to escape to for the great and the good.

Drawn by the quality of the light, the shimmering blue of the sea and the warm scents drifting down from the sun drenched hillsides, the Riviera offers those who come here an experience that charges all the senses and stays long in the memory.

The Spirit of the Belle Époque

Built in a grander age Le Beauvallon offers its guests of all generations, great space and freedom. Now over one hundred years old, it is a place where every modern convenience exists alongside Belle Époque qualities of an otherwise vanished age.

Become a Part of History

For many years a grand hotel, Le Beauvallon, located across the Bay of Saint-Tropez, welcomed the likes of Sir Winston and Lady Churchill, the Grand-Duchesse of Luxembourg and King Mohamed V of Morocco.

Paul Geradly, whose collection of love poems Toi & Moi was at one time the best-selling collection of poetry in France, lived and worked in one of the rooms on the 4th floor.

The distinguished guest list has included eminent artists, writers and politicians who all fell for the charms of the Riviera.

Beach Club pool and terrace

Rotunda

The Beach Club has a spectacular 120m beach front and panoramic views across the Bay of Saint-Tropez. The half size Olympic pool sits on the edge of a private stretch of sandy beach with its own tender pontoon. The vast pool zone features a pool bar, seafront Rotunda and the Toyo Ito Pavilion.

The Pavilion, designed by Toyo Ito and Cecil Balmond with Arup, started its life as the 2002 Serpentine Gallery Pavilion in Hyde Park. Now sitting comfortably on Le Beauvallon's shore, the pavilion pays homage to the beautiful Riviera light and century old pine trees that filter through its transparent panels.

Toyo Ito is the Japanese architect, winner of 2013 Pritzker Prize, who is known for creating conceptual architecture.

From the sea, the triangular and trapezoid forms of the pavilion resemble sails - it has really found its home in this landscape.

Discovering the Cote d'Azur and Provence

Le Beauvallon is situated opposite the legendary Saint-Tropez, close to enchanting hill-top villages and vineyards. It's bathed in light all year round and enjoys the perennial fragrance of rare shrubs and plants. It is one of the rare places that is close to lights and glamour of Saint-Tropez, while jealously guarding its seclusion and tranquillity. It operates its own Fjord yacht service which will get you across the bay in minutes.
